DETAILED ACTION

CLAIMS PRESENTED

Claims 1-23 are presented.

Allowable Subject Matter

The subject matter of claims 1-23 overcomes the prior art. Nevertheless, as the subject matter is non-statutory, claims 1-23 must not be allowed. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable (over the prior art) subject matter: Such particular use of such particular Threat Management Vector (TMV) with such particular features in such particular context of the other features of the claims is not taught or suggested by the prior art.

CLAIM REJECTIONS

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Regarding claims 1-23, the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claims recite only perfunctory recitation of functional material (computer program product, computer readable field, computer system, computer readable medium, etc.). Aside from this, the claims recite only nonfunctional descriptive material.

Art Unit: 2134

When nonfunctional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium, in a computer or on an electromagnetic carrier signal, it is not statutory since no requisite functionality is present to satisfy the practical application requirement. Merely claiming nonfunctional descriptive material, i.e., abstract ideas, stored on a computer-readable medium, in a computer, or on an electromagnetic carrier signal, does not make it statutory. See Diehr, 450 U.S. at 185-86, 209 USPQ at 8 (noting that the claims for an algorithm in Benson were unpatentable as abstract ideas because “[t]he sole practical application of the algorithm was in connection with the programming of a general purpose computer.”). Such a result would exalt form over substance.

For further guidance on the term “nonfunctional”, please see MPEP 2106.

Conclusion

The art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The art disclosed general background.
